Header :Pony SPA Management visit Renzacci UK's new HQ

An association going back 37 years was cemented recently when management from renowned Italian manufacturer of finishing equipment, Pony S.P.A, visited Renzacci UK's new premises in Feltham, close to London's Heathrow airport.

The two companies have enjoyed an unbroken relationship dating back to 1972, when the present chairman, George Alexander, negotiated the original arrangement with Pony for the sole distribution of its world leading presses and ironing tables in the UK. That association endures today and the special relationship between the two companies was reconfirmed at the meeting. The main reason for the visit, however, was to show Pony the new state-of-the-art premises that Renzacci UK moved into in December 2008.

Says Jason: "It was a pleasure to welcome Paolo and Massimo to our new home. Paolo and I are both the second generation of our families to run our respective businesses so, quite apart from 37 years of history, there is a strong bond between us. Needless to say, both Paolo and Massimo were mightily impressed by our new headquarters!"
